

Human Resources Management System certified by APCER

The INCM's Human Resources Management System has been certified by APCER - Associação Portuguesa de Certificação, in accordance with the NP 4427:2004 standard, making the INCM one of the first companies in Portugal to obtain this certification.

Taking into account that placing a high value on human resources is fundamental for any organisation wishing to maintain high levels of performance, the INCM adopted a set of principles aimed at improving their human resources management skills to attract, develop and keep the best professionals and, as a result, to become more competitive.

For the INCM, obtaining this certification is a significant milestone in the ongoing development of its human resources policy, a priority assumed by the company "for the value of people".
